Pancoast's English Prose and Verse

From Beowulf to Stevenson

By HENRY S. PANCOAST

816 pages. 8vo. $1.75

FRED L. HOMER, Pittsburgh High Schools, Pa.:

I believe it to be the best single volume collection for school use I am acquainted with.

JOHN L. HANEY, Central High School, Philadelphia, Pa.:

It is a pleasure to note how successfully the editor has coped with the really perplexing problem that confronted him in the compilation of this volume. He has shown rare judgment in his apportionment of the space to the significant writers of each epoch.

Stone and Garrison's Essentials of Argument

By ARTHUR P. STONE, Instructor in English in Harvard University and STEWART L. GARRISON, Instructor in English and Public Speaking in Worcester Academy.

The basic principle of this class textbook is that argument is not a hybrid or freak form of composition in which analysis, evidence, and reasoning are the only things to be considered. There are chapters on the qualities of style with some attempt to apply the principles specifically to argument.

A chapter on Delivery and one on Debating are not theoretical but embody the practical results of the senior author, who gives the courses in argument at Harvard, is a judge and lawyer in active practice, and is in charge of the Advisory Committee at Harvard which has practical control of all the debating activities of the university.

The book includes all the subjects of the triangular debates between Harvard, Yale, and Princeton, and gives a specimen brief and argument with the author's comments and criticism in detail.

The Junior High-School Movement

is the most vital and far-reaching of all recent developments in elementary and secondary education. If you wish to know all about it, and to learn of the experiences of a score or more of leading city and town school departments that have introduced it,

Read the Magazine, Education, for September

The leading article in this number is an exhaustive presentation of this important subject; a complete bibliography of the Junior High School will follow in the October number.

Education enters its thirty-seventh year with the September number.

All articles are strictly original.

It wastes no time on mere school news and gossip.

It will keep you in touch with the great movements of the profession.

Its "Foreign Notes" are more complete than any other educational journal's.

Its circulation is national.

It is thoroughly "worth while."

AMERICAN PROSE

Selected and Edited with Illustrative and Explanatory Notes and a Bibliography

By WALTER C. BRONSON, Professor of English Literature, Brown University

Companion Volume to American Poems

This volume of representative selections from the prose literature of our country will quickly take its place as a standard work for classroom use, as well as for private reading. Clear and attractive in typography, American Prose contains a fund of exceedingly interesting material, the selections covering the writings of authors from the settlement of Jamestown to the end of the Civil War.

The editor has followed the modern tendency in books of selections, toward including fewer authors and giving more space to each. He has selected material which is specially adapted for careful study in class. Most teachers will welcome the abundance of selections from such authors as Poe, Emerson, and Hawthorne, which illustrate the different phases of their work far better than one story or one essay could. The three orations by Calhoun, Webster, and Lincoln will also prove valuable for reading or classroom work: they have a kind of unity, all dealing with the big question of slavery and the Union, yet from different points of view.

800 pages, cloth; $1.50, postage extra (weight 2 lbs. 10 oz.)

In Making Out Your Lists of Reading

for the year. do not forget the classics which represent the best in modern editing and bookmaking. The eighty volumes in the Standard English Classic Series combine unusual quality with reasonable cost. With few exceptions all the reading required for college entrance is included in the series. A selection of any of these volumes will find your choice justified.

The New Hudson Shakespeare Series is also an ideal school edition. The student not only enjoys reading, but desires to own these attractively bound books. It is seldom that an authoritative edition, distinguished by sympathetic and scholarly editing, can be obtained at such a low price—thirty cents the volume.

Why not write us concerning your plans for the year's reading?

ORAL ENGLISH

By ANTOINETTE KNOWLES

Instructor in Public Speaking, High School, San Jose, California

KNOWLES' ORAL ENGLISH is the outgrowth of ten years of experiment, research, and successful experience.

It teaches students how to prepare what is worth hearing as well as how to acquire the art of effective delivery.

The section on composition shows how to secure and organize material.

The section on argument and persuasion teaches the rules of debate, how to prepare and test proof, how to make a brief, how to refute, and how to persuade and convince.

Abundant exercises, illustrative extracts, and lists of topics are included.

Lewis and Hosic's Practical English for High Schools

By WILLIAM D. LEWIS, Principal William Penn High School for Girls, Philadelphia, and JAMES FLEMING HOSIC, Managing Editor, The English Journal, Secretary of National Council of Teachers of English, Head of Department of English, Chicago Normal College, Chicago. Cloth, 12mo, 350 pp. approximately. Price $1.00.

THIS book attempts to teach the old subject of English composition in a way that is more informal and interesting than is customary. There is a liveliness of tone to the presentation which is well calculated to appeal to the pupil and spur him on to do the work presented. Each topic begins with illustrative selections, many of them from student themes, and from these suggestive questions bring out the most important principles, which in their turn are made the basis of exercises to be performed by the pupil. There is an absence of formal and formidable rules.

Throughout the work it is the practical side that receives the chief emphasis. The pupil is given a working knowledge of modern business methods. Besides being drilled thoroughly in those fundamental principles that are common to all kinds of good English, his attention is devoted to the use of cards for filing and outlining, the study of business reports, business letters, proof reading, and newspaper writing. An attempt is also made to teach the pupil how to criticize and correct his own work, and how to make correct recitations. A brief review of the essentials of grammar is included.
